DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1-9, 11-24 and 26 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Wachs (2,265,329). Wachs shows a washing glove capable of conforming to both hands of a wearer composed of loops of material, i.e. terrycloth, having a first flexible side 10 with a first scrubbing texture, a second flexible side 11 with a second scrubbing texture, the sides being stitching together to provide a sheath for a hand. The glove also having a palmar receptacle 17 that receives and retains solid washing material 18 located over the central portion of the palm and the receptacle 17 is stitched about the marginal area for securement. The palmar receptacle allows water access to the washing material 18 and releases the material 18 onto the wet coat of a pet while providing separation distance between the pet and the hand in the glove. The washing material 18 being beneath a layer of scrubbing material 12 is considered to be impregnated in the scrubbing material 12. Wachs does not show the use of a receptacle on both sides of the glove. With respect to claims 1, 24 and 26, to use a delineated thumb portion with the glove of Wachs would have been obvious to one skilled in the art in order to make the glove more maneuverable and to secure a better grip on the glove. With respect to claim 2, to place a receptacle on both sides of the glove of Wachs would have been obvious to one skilled in the art in order to provide washing material no matter which hand or side of the glove was being used.

Claims 10 and 25 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Wachs in view of Ehrmann (6,510,816). Wacha does not show the use of different scrubbing textures. Ehrmann shows a brush 10 having a first scrubbing texture 14 and a second different scrubbing texture 16. With respect to claims 10 and 25, to use the multiple scrubbing textures of Ehrmann with the glove of Wachs would have been obvious to one skilled in the art in order to provide differing levels of washing massage to the user. With respect to claim 25, to use a delineated thumb portion with the glove of Wachs and Ehrmann would have been obvious to one skilled in the art in order to make the glove more maneuverable and to secure a better grip on the glove.

Conclusion

The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. Included for further reference on washing gloves are: Zeuner (2,745,128), Courtney et al (5,682,837), Hegoas et al (5,867,829), Blum (6,460,190), Eichelbaum (6,393,614) and Roche (D422,758).
